New Version without Cap

Upgraded SBS0029, SBS0044, SBS0045

We at Arrowhead wanted greater performing units to provide to our customers. Our factory was able to produce this, but it came with some changes to the design. These changes included the appearance of the gear and the gear locking mechanism on the end of the armature shaft.

We also found out that the application may not have been totally accurate and thus resulted in non-fitments. In some applications the new drive locking mechanism may be too long and will not allow the starter to bolt up correctly. Also our upgraded unit comes with a black cap to keep out contaminants, but without removing the cap it will not bolt up on certain applications.

WHAT ARE WE DOING ABOUT IT?

We have decided to discontinue selling the upgraded units, however, we will continue to ship the original version of the SBS0029. Once we feel comfortable with the application and quality we will announce a new number for it.

If you have inventory and would like to exchange it, please feel free to contact your sales representative and we will make sure we take care of any of your concerns.

Also, feel free to contact us with any additional questions you may have.
